

Future Goals

To expand Conservation Classrooms across not only the state of Louisiana but also across the United States.

To continue to promote conservation of ALL our natural resources and to bring action and stewardship to the forefront.

Public Reaction

James Gore, Assistant Chief, Natural Resources Conservation Service stated, "Seeing the Conservation Classroom in action was inspiring. Just as important as the conservation work we do in the here and now is empowering our youth to sustain those efforts into the future. The Classroom's ability to take conservation, make it fun and interactive, and then place it into the hands of schoolchildren in rural and urban communities alike exemplifies the kind of proactive spark the conservation movement needs. I commend the Vermilion Soil and Water Conservation District for stepping out as a leader of action."
